

Sustainable Development Goals: Are the rich countries ready?

Christian Kroll
with a foreword by Kofi Annan

„This study will hopefully spark reform debates on sustainability and social justice in many high-income countries. We owe it to our planet and its people.“

Kofi Annan

Nobel Peace Prize Laureate and Seventh Secretary-General of the United Nations

Nachhaltiges Wirtschaften: Deutschland auf Rang sechs

Ahead of the UN Special Summit: Industrialized Nations are at Risk of Missing the new Sustainable Development Goals

Tuesday, 8 Sep 2015 | 12:05 AM ET

National Breaking News

Aust trails OECD on climate change: report

September 8, 2015 2:10pm
AAP

AUSTRALIA ranks in the middle among OECD countries when it comes to environmental sustainability, a new report finds. Australia is a poor performer on carbon emissions and climate change.

Canada ranks high in sustainable development, study finds

THE Sustainable Development Goals: Are the rich countries ready? report has found most OECD (Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development) countries are in danger of missing the UN-mandated targets, with Australia 18th out of the 34 OECD nations.

U.S. One Of Nations Least Likely To Meet New U.N. Poverty Goals

'We in the rich nations, with our growing social inequality and waste of resources, can no longer present ourselves as the world's teachers'

REUTERS | By Ellen Wulforst

Posted: 09/09/2015 12:10 PM EDT

The world's first SDG Index

